GIBBONS OUT FOR HONORS

Lake County Minority Representative Enters Race for Renomination

HAS MADE GOOD RECORD

Will Have the Unanimous Support of all the Democrats of Lake County

Dennis Gibbons, of Deerfield, Lake County, states that he has decided to become a candidate for re-election to the house of Representatives as minority representative from this district, including Lake, McHenry and Boone Counties.

While it had been felt all along that Mr. Gibbons would be a candidate for re-election, this is the first formal announcement he has made on the matter.

As Mr. Gibbons has served in the house with distinction and credit, the democrats of Lake County have had no thought of trying to send anybody else there to represent them and he is therefore certain of Lake County's support for the nomination of minority representative. As the nomination means election there seems no apparent reason why Mr. Gibbons may not make plans for again being seated in the house for the next two years.

While Lake County has more democratic votes than Boone and McHenry combined, it is a known fact that Mr. Gibbons has many friends in Boone and McHenry who wish him returned to the house, and he will get considerable support from those counties as well as from Lake. He will have an opponent in McHenry county, but it is not believed the opposition will amount to much in the long run.

Mr. Gibbons has served most creditably in the house, and is highly regarded by democrats and republicans alike. In fact he is considered one of the most careful and conservative, free-thinking and square men in the whole house.

ADVANTAGE WON BY LIBERTYVILLE

What will unquestionably be one of the great meetings of 1908 will be the one given by the Libertyville Trotting association the week of July 20. This is the week that Detroit usually started the Grand circuit. This year Detroit will come one week later. This puts the Libertyville dates far enough along in the season so that all horses will be ready to race, and the meeting should be a banner one. Four very closing events will be given, namely: A 2:14 trot, purse $10,000; 2:10 trot, purse $2,000; 2:14 pace, purse $5,000; 2:08 pace, purse $2,000. This will give the western horse a chance to race for the largest purse ever offered in the Great Western circuit.

The above events will close April 9. C. R. Bentley will be secretary for 1908. Mr. Bentley is also secretary of the Grand circuit meeting at Buffalo, and is a live, wide-awake official. He says, confidently, he expects to inject some new ideas in the conduct of the Libertyville meeting.

THIS CEMENT WALL A NOVELTY.

Action of Nature Has Given it a Distinct Artistic Value.

There is a wall of cement in Los Angeles which shores up one side of a building lot that has an artistic value never intended by the builder.

He had moved his bags of cement on to the ground to be ready for work and was then called away on some other job for a day or two. In the meantime one of the very infrequent rains came on and each sack turned into stone under the action of the water and the fabric of the sacks themselves were absorbed into the cement so that it was impossible to remove it. Consequently each sack was wrought into the wall as if it had been a boulder on the line of an old stone wall.

They were then chinked and bound together with worked cement and after a time the weather disposed of the gunny sackings, but left the blocks marked with the impress of the weaver. The result is a highly ornamental cement wall, resembling at a little distance a wall of some woven material.

DELEGATES TO CONVENTION

County Committee Met at Libertyville and Selected Delegates

The Lake County Central Committee met in the Libertyville Hotel to select delegates to the State and Congressional conventions. Chairman David Jackson presided.

In opening the meeting, Chairman Jackson read a letter from Chas. Whitney in which Mr. Whitney stated that the congressional committee had selected him to choose the Congressional delegates, however, he felt that the County Central Committee should make the selection, therefore referred it to them. The letter allows considerable discussion, as some of the committee believe that Mr. Whitney should select delegates, while others felt that the whole committee should make the selection. It was finally decided by a vote of 12 to 9 that the convention should select the delegates. The various committees then nominated the different delegates for their respective districts, and they are as follows:

First Dist.—Pres. State Convention, P. W. Mothersill; Congressional, D. A. Ferry, W. H. Lichty, Geo. Weidman.

Second Dist.—Benton, 2. State, H. W. Ferry; Congressional, E. B. Hollingsworth, E. L. Ferry.

CROOKS PASS STOLEN POSTAL MONEY ORDERS

Complainers have reached the Chicago police that large numbers of money orders, stolen recently from the Kinzie street station, are being circulated in nearby towns and cities. They are being filled in for amounts varying from $25 to $50.

These orders are presented by a man and woman who are traveling together. They buy a small bill of goods in a store and receive the difference from the merchants in currency.

At the time of the burglary 1,000 blank money orders disappeared. The police have warned all departments surrounding Chicago to be on the look out for the swindlers.

They All Do It. It's pretty hard for a married woman to pass a male acquaintance on the street without turning to her husband and remarking: "He used to be an old beau of mine."

LOCAL OPTION MOVE BITTERLY DENOUNCED BY REV. FATHER GAVIN

Priest of St. Mary's Church, Waukegan, Deals Body Blow to Temperance Move in Town of Waukegan at Both Masses Sunday Morning, Creating Thereby Quite a Sensation

REFERS TO LEADERS OF MOVEMENT AS "FANATICS"

Said That, up to the Time of the Recent Abusive Article on Cardinal Gibbons, He had Intended Voting for the Movement, but Such an Attack Coupled Him to Feel Otherwise—Local Optionists, He Said, Would Make Life Impossible of Living

The anti-saloon cause in Waukegan suffered a hard blow Sunday when Rev. E. W. Gavin, of the church of the Immaculate Conception, the most important church probably in Lake county, voiced his views on local option.

The following is the sermon in substance as published in the Waukegan Gazette:

"Don't be guided by a lot of fanatics—be guided by your own judgment; the Catholic church teaches temperance, but never total abstinence," was the substance of the priest's remarks.

Father Gavin held a copy of the paper in which the criticism of Cardinal Gibbons had appeared. He read extracts from it, frequently pausing to make pointed remarks. All during the reading, the congregation sat so still that the dropping of a pin could be heard. It could be seen that they were much impressed and the result will undoubtedly be a heavy blow to the local option leaders. At times the priest grew very bitter and his voice rose to a higher pitch, ringing through the large auditorium with the weight of conviction.

"Why, if you were to let these people who advocate local option and total abstinence have their own way, there would be no living in the city for the rest of us," said the speaker excitedly. "Take Maine and New Hampshire for instance. They are the states about which we would naturally expect to find the great growth of our country revealing. They were once thriving states, but look at them now. See what total abstinence has done for them."

"These reformers denounce a man because he takes a glass of beer or a glass of wine, which over it may be. To deprive him of that, is to deprive him of his personal liberty. God gave us the juice of the grape and the grain. Have we not then a right to use them without being restricted in our God given way?"

"Now I do not want it thought that I am defending the saloon keeper, because that is not my motive, but I have a perfect right to express my opinions, and I also have a right to denounce the action that has been taken by some of those who are trying to establish total abstinence, and I certainly do denounce it."

"In the name of God, let me ask where you will be if you take away a yearly revenue of $30,000? It will mean advanced taxes and we must make up for this great revenue that has been taken away, out of our own pockets. There will be no living in the city; if local option becomes a law."

"Local option leaders denounce the saloon keeper for his calling. It is not right. Don't denounce the saloon keeper. Denounce the man that enters the saloon."

Does the saloon keeper go out and solicit trade? No. His customers come to him voluntarily, when he sees that they have had more than is good for them he does not encourage them to stay, but casts them out.

"Reformers cry out that there is danger in permitting the liquor traffic to remain. Why don't they take some action to fence in the lake? That is dangerous too."

"Some will question my right to talk in this way. But haven't I a perfect right to say what I wish? Is it not a privilege that is given to all to express themselves if they see fit? A great many will blame me for these statements, but I care not. I am an old man and I am going to say just what I think about it."

"I have not a doubt but that some of those who are bolstering up the Local Option movement are doing it for the money that they get out of it, or in other words the monetary consideration that they receive is all that prompts their work."

"You all know how LaSalle first came to this country and how he explored it in the exposure of some of the colder parts and how he established the Catholic church here. Were we not the first church and therefore the oldest? Shall we allow the members of other churches to dictate what we shall do?"

"We are the real natives of this country and we have a right to our liberties without restriction. If we allow these reformers to prevent us from drinking in moderation now, if we see fit, they will come into our homes later and dictate just what we shall eat."

"Does the church that is older than all of these sects object to the juice of the grape? No! And it does not purpose to have others tell it what it must do and what it must not do."

"When we had a temperance society in this city, some time ago, I well remember that some of the members became so stingy that they would not give even a nickel to the church. They had equandered so much all their lives that they wanted to make up for it all at once. They even starved their families in their stultices."

"If a man wants to drink in moderation it is his own business. A man is a fool who doesn't know enough to stop when it is hurting him. The only thing for him to do is to let it alone entirely."

"I remember when we had temperance here before, that many of the men who had always drunk in moderation would often take a bottle of whiskey home and invite some neighbor over to drink with him. Perhaps he would then go to that neighbor's house and he might have a jug of whiskey. Perhaps some other neighbors might have a key of it. The result was that the men were bigger sets than when they had a saloon right next door to them and there were many drunkards in the city who had before been men who would drink a glass of beer or wine and leave it alone. They knew enough to drink in moderation before the city became temperance territory."

"Not only would you find whiskey in the basements of the houses, but every blacksmith shop had its jug as did every hardware store, grocery store or drug store. That was what made drunkards."

"I am not going to tell you to vote against Local Option, because your vote is your privilege to do with as you please, but my advice to you is to be very careful how you cast your ballot and do not be guided by a lot of fanatics."

Because of the large Catholic population of the town of Waukegan people generally are wondering what effect the influential priest's remarks will have on the Local Option movement. A priest in a church always has a strong influence on his people hence the words of Father Gavin will no doubt have a strong bearing on the ultimate outcome of the movement for it is certain that, should the people of that faith, unite in a body, or even to a large proportion they could sway a question of this sort in the town of Waukegan.

Fish Inseparable to Pain. How sensitive to pain are fish? A correspondent writes: "I have a small pond which is stocked with trout. I keep an accurate account of those I catch and note when I lose any. The other morning a big rainbow trout broke the worm hook with which I had hooked him. That evening I hooked and landed a good trout, also with worm tackle, which proved to be my friend of the morning, as right down in his stomach was the broken gut and hook, and, besides this, in his lip was a March brown fly hook which, according to my fishing hook, must have been there many weeks. A fish with a fly hook in his mouth, a worm hook in his stomach and ready to gulp down bait must be quite impervious to what we mortals call pain."

TO MAKE FROST BANKRUPT

Waukegan Attorney Interested in Action in Chicago Federal Court

Attorney J. K. Orvis of Waukegan was one of two parties to take steps Monday in Chicago in the federal court, to have A. C. Frost, former head of the electric line, declared a bankrupt. Of the steps of importance Monday, a Chicago morning paper said:

Petitions to have A. C. Frost, president and promoter of the defunct Chicago and Milwaukee electric railroad, declared a bankrupt will be heard today by Judge K. M. Landis in the United States District court. His decision on the question of appointing a temporary receiver in the matter may help to put an important kink in the big tangle of legal difficulties which already hinders the north shore promoter and his road.

The petitions to have him declared a bankrupt charge that the proceedings as the result of which George M. Seward was named receiver for A. C. Frost were collusive and that Seward was formerly the alleged bankrupt's confidential man. The petitions plan to secure Seward's removal through their action. In the order appointing Seward Judge Grosscup found Frost to be solvent.

Another petition also was filed which attacks the entire receivership of the road, declaring that "the persons controlling the receivership suits," including those of the road, as well as the one against Frost himself, "are working together for the benefit of the railroad and to the injury of Frost's general creditors."

The petitioners who want Frost declared a bankrupt are Justin K. Orvis of Waukegan, the Western Bank Note and Engraving company and the Hartnell Lord company of Chicago. Their claims aggregate approximately $5,600. In their joint bill asking that Frost be declared a bankrupt, they charge he has committed a long series of acts of bankruptcy, including the transfer on various dates of $33,000 worth of real estate to Otto R. Hansen, the creditor who started the receivership proceedings against the Chicago and Milwaukee electric railroad company of Illinois.

WILMOT'S PRISONER, CAPTAIN KELLAR, LEAPS FROM TRAIN

Deputy U. S. Marshal W. H. Wilmot of Waukegan, had a sensational experience at Portage, Wis., Friday, while en route to Chicago with Captain Kellar, the Fort Sheridan officer whom he arrested in Canada on a charge of stealing $90,000 from the United States government.

While the train was going along at thirty-five miles an hour near Portage, Kellar made a dash for the door while the officer was not looking and made his escape.

Leaping from the train he made off through the woods and before the train could stop he had gained a good start on the officer.

Marshal Wilmot explained to the trainmen and passengers that a most important prisoner had escaped and the train was stopped and a posse at once organized.

Marshal Wilmot was determined to capture his man and the posse went into hot pursuit. They finally ran him down and he was again placed in arrest and this time he was handcuffed to the officer who took another train for Chicago where his prisoner is now in the county jail and will be tried by the federal courts.

MIDNIGHT THIEVES ROB STORE AT LIBERTYVILLE

The cash drawer of C. Getti & Co., at Libertyville was robbed of about $3 in small change last Tuesday night and two boxes of cigars were also taken. The store was closed at about 10 o'clock and the robbery took place between that time and midnight. An entrance was effected at the rear door and the cash drawer which is a combination one, was pried open and cleared of all the money, most of it being in nickels, dimes and pennies. The proprietors think the work that of local talent as it took some one who was well acquainted with the place to break in, in that manner.

Keep Girls Young. "It is hard to take a back seat and see the younger generation occupying the front ones," says a millionaire's widow, who is not through being youthful, though she has two grown-up daughters. She admires the "fine restraint" which wealthy French mothers exercise over the dressing of their young daughters, and she wishes more of this maternal mastery could be seen in this country. "Until she is married, if that event takes place when she is young," says the widow, "a young girl is dressed almost as if she were a schoolroom child. Supposing she remains unwed at 21, she is still dressed after a uniform plan, so that her mother may continue to dress youthfully yet have toilets entirely different in style from her daughter's."—Exchange.

OBEY VOLIVA CLOSELY

Interesting Fact is That Voliva Followers are Very Subservient to His Will

BOYCOTT ON ZION STORES

Report That Effort May be Made to Prosecute Voliva for Declaring Boycott on General Stores

"It is rather strange and seemingly unlikely but the fact is that the followers of Voliva at Zion City obey him more closely than Dowie's followers ever obeyed him," said a prominent man Tuesday in speaking of Zion affairs.

He explained that, since Voliva's ultimatum to his people that they must no longer trade at the Zion general stores, the people have obeyed him to the letter and not one has made a purchase in the general stores.

They have accordingly made all their purchases in the Voliva stores at Winthrop Harbor and it is said that six clerks have been working in the grocery department as the result of the additional business done there.

The general boycott on the general stores is proving more effective than the anti-Voliva people expected it would be and receiver lately is said to be considerably wrought up over it.

In this connection it is reported that there is talk in Zion that steps may be taken to prosecute Voliva for pulling a boycott on the general stores of Zion, the hope being that to take him under the boycott law.

But, according to lawyers, this would be impossible for they consider that Voliva has the right to tell his people to trade at his own stores and that, if they see fit to do it, that is all there is to it.

If that is the case, then Voliva is not liable under the law, and his people can continue trading at the new stores to the loss of the general stores of Zion.

POPULAR RESIDENT OF LAKE VILLA PASSED AWAY

On Friday morning the people of Lake Villa and vicinity were shocked to learn of the sudden and unexpected death of Mr. J. J. Daily, manager of the Lehman farm at Lake Villa.

The cause of his death was pneumonia from which he had been suffering only three days. So short was his illness that few were aware of his condition and the news of his death was sudden shock to the whole community.

Mr. Daily has held the position of manager of the Lehman farm for about three years and during the time that he has resided there has made many warm friends among the people of Lake Villa and the surrounding country.

WORLD'S TRIBUTE TO MOTHERS.

Proverbs of Many Nations Show Love and Veneration

At a mothers' meeting a young woman recounted with some pride a number of proverbs about mothers.

"It is easier for a poor mother to keep seven children than for seven children to keep a mother." That said and striking proverb," she said, "is from the Swiss."

"A mother's love is now every day." "He who will not mind his mother will some day have to mind the jailer." "Better lose a rich father than a poor mother." "A father's love is only knee-deep, but a mother's reaches to the heart." These splendid proverbs are all German.

"The Hindoes say poetically, Mother or mine, ever mine, whether I be rich or poor."

"The Venetians say, 'Mother! He who has one calls her; he who has none misses her.'"

"The Bohemians say, 'A mother's hand is soft even when it strikes.'"

"The Lithuanians say, 'Mother means martyr.'"

SYNOPSIS.

Burton H. Barnes, a wealthy American touring Corsica, rescues the young English lieutenant, Edward Gerard Anstruther, and his Corsican bride, Marina, daughter of the Paolis, from the murderous vendetta, understanding that his reward is to be the hand of the girl he loves. Enid Anstruther, sister of the English lieutenant, the four fly from Ajaccio to Marseilles on board the French steamer Constantine. The vendetta pursues and as the quartet are about to board the train for London at Marseilles, Marina is "handed" a mysterious note which causes her to collapse and necessitates a postponement of the journey. Barnes gets part of the mysterious note and receives letters which inform him that he is marked by the vendetta. He employs an American detective and plans to beat the vendetta at their own game. For the purpose of securing the safety of the women Barnes arranges to have Lady Charlita, a secluded villa of Nico to which the party is to be taken in a yacht. Suspicion is created that Marina is in league with the Corsicans. A man, believed to be Correggio Danella, is seen passing the house and Marina is thought to have given him a sign. Marina refuses to explain. Barnes, who fact adds to his instant suspicions, Barnes plans for the safety of the party are learned by the Corsicans. The party carrying their party to the local landing is followed by two men. One of the horsemen is supposed to be Correggio. They try to murder the Americans. The cook on the yacht, a Frenchman, is suspected of complicity in the plot. The party anchors at St. Tropez. The yacht is followed by a small boat. The boat, detected giving signals to the boat, Barnes attempts to throw him overboard, but is prevented by Marina and Enid. The boat is found to be innocent of the supposed plot and is forgiven. The party arrives at Nico and the Danella villa. Barnes and her daughter, Maud, domiciled in the villa rented with Barnes' money. Barnes is amazed to find that Count Correggio is at Nico and is acting the role of admirer to Lady Charlita. Barnes and Enid make arrangements for their marriage. The net tightens about Barnes. He receives a note from La Bella Blackwood, the American adventuress. Barnes hears that Elijah Emory, his detective, has been murdered by the Corsicans. He learns that the man supposed to be Correggio, who followed the party on the way to the boat, was a Sicilian and a nephew of the count, and that Count Correggio had been in Nico for some time prior to the party's arrival. Enid, who was Barnes' not a married woman, unless he would have her also involved in the murderous feud.

CHAPTER IX.

The Coming of Danella.

At the morning meal Barnes finds the rest of the party growing excited over the approaching ceremony, and Maud telling them about her maid-of-honor dress. "You'll have to lend me a pair of silk stockings, Enid," cries the putative infant. "I don't think I have any hang up enough for the ceremony. They should be corks. Maud show yours don't."

This oration is interrupted by Lady Charlita saying, insistently: "Cousin Burton, you must have had a pretty long chat with the minister. I waited for you last evening till half-past 11."

A sly giggle from Maud sets Enid's blue eyes ablaze, though there's a whimper on her sweet lips. "Yes, lots of details," replies Barnes, casually. "Did you have a pleasant outing with Cip, Cousin Prunella?"

"Of course I did, with such a cavalier."

"You invited Count Danella to my wedding?" asks the American abruptly.

"Of course I did," cries the widow, rapturously. "He accepted immediately; said he was very anxious to meet you."

"The pleasure will be mutual," observes Burton, grimly.

Enid and her brother look at each other solemnly, but Marina's face, when she learns that Cipriano Danella has accepted the invitation to the nuptials, becomes so serious that Barnes, after breakfast, takes her husband aside and says: "Have you found out about that accused letter?"

"No, she begged me not to ask her. She sobbed it was for my happiness that I didn't know. You'll soon discover, Barnes," remarks Edwin moodily, "that you cannot do much with a bride when she turns on the hose and washes the matrimonial docks."

This reminds Burton that he had better not start his married life with a secret, and getting Enid alone with him, which isn't very difficult, he briefly, but pointedly, tells his fiancée of his interview with La Bella Blackwood.

"Oh, I'm so glad you told me—so glad she's not all bad!" exclaims the girl, rewarding him with so rapturous a kiss that he is delighted he refused Sally's farewell salute. "I learned from Maud that you had received a letter from her," she adds, hesitatingly.

"You didn't doubt me?" This issues in stern reproach from the lips of the American.

"Oh, no, but—but no secrets from me, please," she entreats. "There's no real love without a little jealousy," then shudders. "And so these villains killed poor Emory?"

"I'm afraid so," answers her lover, and his tone grows very solemn. "You see how remorselessly, how craftily we are pursued, that the haven of safety I had planned for you, dear one, when I left you to put those devils forever out of the way, is now known to them. You remember the awful threat against any woman who weds me. You've—no wish to delay our marriage?" His eyes are very eager.

Her eyes answer his with equal passion. "No, on the contrary," answers the resolute English girl, "I am resolved more than ever."

"Then may God never forgive me if I don't save you from all harm," mutters the coming husband. "Yet we must take all precautions. Just try and see if you cannot do better than your brother."

"How?" asks Enid, eagerly.

"The knowledge of the contents of that letter to Marina may be vital, not only for the happiness of her husband and herself, but perhaps to the safety of all of us. See if you cannot in some woman's way get the information of what it contained."

About an hour after this, Enid returns and remarks disappointedly: "Not a word from Marina except that it was something entirely between her and her husband; that we would discover some day." Then she blushing asks: "Where are you going to take me after marriage?"

This is a proposition upon which Barnes has been racking his brain. He says, meditatively: "Supposing you and I go out on the yacht?"

"What, alone together? Delightful, romantic!"

"Not entirely. I shall take Graham and three seamen, to sail the schooner. We'll only be away two or three days."

"Two or three days of happiness," whispers the girl, radiantly, and runs away to prepare for her coming nuptials.

Barnes' own preparations occupy him most of the time till the ceremony, though he contrives to discuss his yachting plans with Edwin.

"All right," answers the sailor, "Graham can take care of the schooner as well as I. You leave me the balance of the jockies and I'll guarantee everything's all a-taut when you come into port. I shall take no cruises into Nico. I have enough here to make me happy."

"If Emory should by any chance turn up," remarks Barnes, "keep him with you to help you."

They are interrupted by the French cook, who has come on shore in the dingy bearing a magnificent wedding cake that he has manufactured in the deep mourning of southern France, the high Corsican hat he still carries in his hand leads picturesquely to Cipriano's costume. Notwithstanding his somber garb, soon the gentleman is laughing with Lady Charlita; Maud driving her mother distracted by crying: "I'm only 11, but I'm as tall as the bride, ain't I, mamma, dear?" and standing up back to back with Enid, making a great juvenile display of baby waist and pink elken stockings.

"It's her high-heeled slippers," cries her mother, angrily. "The deceitful child is standing on tip-toe!"

"Ma foi, la petite is anxious to be married herself," smiles Cipriano.

"Ain't I?" cries Maud, merrily. "Ask mamma for me, count."

"Oh, mercy, the champagne has gone to the min's head," gasps Lady Charlita, savagely. But Correggio has again devoted his attention to Marina. As well he may; her dark, liquid eyes enrrying in their depths the passion of the south, yet always seeming to ask this man a pathetic question—one his orbs refuse to answer, though several times there is so amorous a gleam in them that the young English husband would like to take their own by the throat.

At the first opportunity, while the ladies are gathered about Enid talking to her of her yachting cruise, Barnes says to Danella: "A few words in private with you, please, count."

"Certainly, I was about to request that myself," remarks Cipriano.

"Perhaps the garden would be more secluded," and the American, ready for action, keeping his eye upon his visitor, politely opens the door and bows him out into the grounds.

His visitor walks well into the shade of the orange and citron trees, passing to where a rift in the foliage permits a view of the boat landing, which in the coming light is now hardly discernible. Here he pauses carelessly, his brilliant orbs occasionally directed toward the water. A moment later he observes quietly: "Your wedding made me sad, Signore."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

To Clean Window Shades.

We have all heard the story of the woman who told the new maid to wash the curtains, meaning the lace ones, and came into the kitchen just in time to discover the newest window shades melting in the boiler. But we do not all know that when shades are merely dust soiled the surface can be freshened by the application of hot corn meal. The shade should first be spread out flat on a large table and the meal rubbed in with a circular motion of the palm. Then it rubbed gently with a soft, dry cloth the meal and the dust it has absorbed will be removed without leaving any trace of either.—Country Life in America.

Sadness is Penalty of Humor.

All the great humorists are sad—Cervantes, Moliere, Swift, Sterne, Helme, Richter, Balzac, Dickens—for sadness is the penalty which nature has annexed to that deep, searching knowledge of life we call humor. Hence is the tragedy of literature. If the man did not weep sometimes, we would cease to laugh at his jests.—In the end he weeps too much, and then we talk of the failure of art!—Michael Monahan in Papyrus.

What She Should Do.

They were interested only in their own affairs and didn't seem to care who heard them. "Gave me the joy elbow on Main street yesterday, didn't you?" he began. "Cross my heart, I didn't mean to," she replied. "I just didn't see you." "But you looked right at me." "Can't help it, I didn't see you." "Hihi! Well, if you didn't you ought to go to one of those octogenarians and get your eyes fixed."

married with a revolver in your hip pocket ready for business."

A moment later the usual congratulations and kisses have been given, the party are about to turn to the dining-room, where the wedding supper is spread, there to drink the bride's health before she lifts away.

But their steps are stayed by the sound of prancing steeds announcing the coming of the belated yet only invited guest. "Oh, at last! But you are late," cries Prunella, ecstatically, as she runs into the hall. "Just time, Count Cipriano, to toast the bride."

"Yes, an unfortunate accident to my horses," enters to them in a soft, southern voice from the hallway, where Prunella is interviewing the cavalier she has been waiting for so eagerly.

As this takes place, Edwin whispers: "I'll keep my eye on the beggar."

"And I'll talk to the gentleman as soon as I can get a chance, and if he doesn't give me a clean bill of health—"

The rest of Barnes' speech is interrupted by the entry of the object of their suspicions. Count Cipriano greets the company with extreme politeness.

Upon the ceremony Marina had looked with a very pale face, but now two hectic spots flame in either cheek as she returns the salute of Danella, who murmurs: "Tis years since I saw you—the little girl poor Musso loved. You have grown into a beautiful woman—you who were my dead brother's ward."

But soon after, as the champagne sparkles, the count toasts the bride very gallantly, remarking on her youthful English beauty. "Signore Barnes should be a very happy man," he whispers to her, and goes on chatting so unaffectedly and pleasantly that Enid, who had looked upon his entrance as if he were Mephisto himself, begins to think this pleasant-voiced but vivacious-mannered gentleman is not so dangerous as she suspected.

Dressed in the deep mourning of southern France, the high Corsican hat he still carries in his hand leads picturesquely to Cipriano's costume. Notwithstanding his somber garb, soon the gentleman is laughing with Lady Charlita; Maud driving her mother distracted by crying: "I'm only 11, but I'm as tall as the bride, ain't I, mamma, dear?" and standing up back to back with Enid, making a great juvenile display of baby waist and pink elken stockings.

"It's her high-heeled slippers," cries her mother, angrily. "The deceitful child is standing on tip-toe!"

"Ma foi, la petite is anxious to be married herself," smiles Cipriano.

"Ain't I?" cries Maud, merrily. "Ask mamma for me, count."

"Oh, mercy, the champagne has gone to the min's head," gasps Lady Charlita, savagely. But Correggio has again devoted his attention to Marina. As well he may; her dark, liquid eyes enrrying in their depths the passion of the south, yet always seeming to ask this man a pathetic question—one his orbs refuse to answer, though several times there is so amorous a gleam in them that the young English husband would like to take their own by the throat.

At the first opportunity, while the ladies are gathered about Enid talking to her of her yachting cruise, Barnes says to Danella: "A few words in private with you, please, count."

"Certainly, I was about to request that myself," remarks Cipriano.

"Perhaps the garden would be more secluded," and the American, ready for action, keeping his eye upon his visitor, politely opens the door and bows him out into the grounds.

His visitor walks well into the shade of the orange and citron trees, passing to where a rift in the foliage permits a view of the boat landing, which in the coming light is now hardly discernible. Here he pauses carelessly, his brilliant orbs occasionally directed toward the water. A moment later he observes quietly: "Your wedding made me sad, Signore."

To Clean Window Shades.

We have all heard the story of the woman who told the new maid to wash the curtains, meaning the lace ones, and came into the kitchen just in time to discover the newest window shades melting in the boiler. But we do not all know that when shades are merely dust soiled the surface can be freshened by the application of hot corn meal. The shade should first be spread out flat on a large table and the meal rubbed in with a circular motion of the palm. Then it rubbed gently with a soft, dry cloth the meal and the dust it has absorbed will be removed without leaving any trace of either.—Country Life in America.

Sadness is Penalty of Humor.

All the great humorists are sad—Cervantes, Moliere, Swift, Sterne, Helme, Richter, Balzac, Dickens—for sadness is the penalty which nature has annexed to that deep, searching knowledge of life we call humor. Hence is the tragedy of literature. If the man did not weep sometimes, we would cease to laugh at his jests.—In the end he weeps too much, and then we talk of the failure of art!—Michael Monahan in Papyrus.

The Legend
of St. Patrick

'Twas the days of the hedge-school; Mullarky was then—
At the side of the ditch the most dreaded of men,
Sure the flight of the bird, or the speed of the hare
To watch for a moment there's no one would dare.
An' when circles and squares on the dirt he would trace,
'Twas amazin' the larkin' that showed in his face,
While the thoughts that revolved in his towzy old head
Were deep and tremendous, himself often said,
Religion, of course, was a thame he well knew,
Not your now-fangled notions, but stuff that was true.
Wid that he taught love for the sacred old sod,
Thus helpin' his kind, an' so plasht his God.

Now the seventeenth of March, reckoned then by old style,
The jewel of days in the darlin' old isle,
Was approachin' an' so the good man—

An' Bit at Their Will All the Colleen an' Bys.

ther once morn
Gave a taste to the byes av his legends an' lore.
Patrick banished the snakes and the slanders, you know,
To a place where I hope there will name of us go.
That's the legend accepted, but I have it right—
A tale that hates that out o' mind, out o' sight.
At Tara he preached to the king and the chiefs
His Decalogues, Catalogues, Psalms and beliefs.
Once the king says to Patrick, "The Druids all say
That you're settin' the minds of me Firbolgs astray.
How can one be in three, and be one all the time?
Come, laddy-buck, answer in prose or in rhyme."
"That's aisy," says Patrick, "this dear little plant,
(Praise God!) 'twill be famous the oceans beyant—
Has a stalk all in one, but divides into three;
Yet the shamrock is one, three in one, don't you see?"
"Bedad!" says the king, "that hangs Banagher sure.
Now, byes (to the Druids), ye now have the flure."
But the sorra a word could these clergymen find;
So from then his respect for the Druids declined.

Now, Patrick, me byes, you need scarcely be told,
Was funny an' tricky, though holy an' bold.
So now of the Druids he'd got the whip hand,
Bothought him of blessings he'd show or on the land.
To the king then says he, "For the favors you've shown,
I'll put o'er a back and new legs to your throne.
(Not manin' this last disrespect, but you see)
The preachers don't speak such plain Irish as we.)
In youth a spalpeen taught me hordin' of swine—
Your majesty's pardon, the fault was not mine.
Let me here introduce the bonean an' I'll go bail,
Over the evils of Erin the pig will prevail."

Now the Druids held serpents as sacred, you see;
In England they feared that, betune you an' me.
They would cast up in line sometimes nearly a mile
The soda all as one as a serpent's profile.

When this had been done, sorra one durst complain
Though the land were his own and his father's domain.
It was sacred, and then for the sakes of his soul,
He must part wid it, barrin' a sigh or a growl.
Then the snakes represented were holy likewise
An' bit at their will all the colreens an' byes.

Well, the pigs went to rootin', bedad it was fun
To watch the ould Druids when their ruin begun.
Wid faces of fury and hearts full of hate
They would curse the dear pigs, I'm ashamed to relate.
They invoked all the planets and far as they knew,
The fixed stars and comets, the sun and moon, too.
Next the wraiths that inhabit the winds and the floods,
Then they danced holy figs in the scantiest of duds.
But the pigs took no notice, but ate all the more,
And the Druids saw Fate was now hard by the door.
Then they prayed to the giants that ravaged the isle
When ten foot of spine was the height of the style.
There was one who from Mona off waded to Wales,
And one who in coughin' produced the wild gales.
Another in sport tried to bridge the broad say,
The Causeway in Ulster bears witness to-day.
Then the one who at Powerscourt drank up the fall,
An' the one who complained "Qovill's Now!" was too small.
The priests cursed the pigs loud and long, but no matter,
On the snakes and their eggs they grow fatter and fatter.

Oh, those were great times when the factions forgot
What also they were of, and what also they were not.
The thousand would follow all jeerin' the while
The Druids who could them no longer beguile.
When rivers they'd reach as the Bann or the Boyne,
Baptized, they the ranks of believers would join.
It was Patrick allanna, me turn at ye plate
Wid givin' an' Gospel the land was ablaze.

Such dippin' an' plungin', baptizin', confessin',
Such prayin' an' preachin', such primplin' an' dressin'!
It was good for their souls and their bodies by token—
The record for bathing his salatskip had broken,
And thousands who'd never been faithered or rubbed,
Had their skins an' their souls now most thoroughly scrubbed.
For the saint told them plainly for o'er they were shavin'
That nothing oclanely was welkin in heaven.
So the pigs ate the snakes and rooted up eggs
From the round hill of Howth down to Bally-kilbegs.

"That's Aisy, Says Patrick, This Dear Little Plant."

From the Gap of Dunloe to the Glen o' the Downs,
And Slib-na-mon grandly Killarney's lake crowns,
There was rootin' an' preachin' an' laughter an' prayer,
No wonder for Salen to leave must prepare.
For barrin' the Saxon and whisky I'll say—
Saint Patrick has rid us of evil to-day.
So now you all know how the snakes met their doom,
And the class wid its studies in Gaelic resume.

JUDGING BY THE RESULTS.

Villager's Conversion Had Not Been of Great Avail.

"In our business we get many doubtful compliments," said Col. John F. Blahon, deputy surveyor of the port, the other day, "but I do not think I ever received a compliment such as my grandfather got down in my native state of Tennessee. My grandfather was a minister and I was a very small boy when we both strolled down the road one day. One of our fellow villagers came along toward us. "Good morning," said the villager, who apparently had looked upon the cur 'Ish' convert—hic—lad, parson," he stammered with difficulty. "An' twashyon—hic—that con—hic—converted—hic—me."

"That must be so," replied my grandfather, "for it's certain the Almighty had nothing to do with your conversion."—New York Evening Telegram.

THREE CURES OF ECZEMA.

Woman Tells of Her Brother's Terrible Suffering—Two Babies Also Cured—Cuticura Invaluable.

"My brother had eczema three different summers. Each summer it came out between his shoulders and down his back, and he said his suffering was terrible. When it came on the third summer, he bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and gave it a faithful trial. Soon he began to feel better and he cured himself entirely of eczema with Cuticura. A lady in Indiana heard of how my daughter, Mrs. Miller, had cured her little son of terrible eczema by the Cuticura Remedies. This lady's little one had the eczema so badly that they thought they would lose it. She used Cuticura Remedies and they cured her child entirely, and the disease never came back. Mrs. Sarah E. What Did He Mean?

For a number of years a bitter feud had existed between the Browns and Perkinses, next door neighbors. The trouble had originated through the depredations of Brown's cat, and had grown so fixed an affair that neither party ever dreamt of "making up." One day, however, Brown sent his servant next door with a peace-making note for Mr. Perkins, which read: "Mr. Brown sends his compliments to Mr. Perkins, and begs to say that his old cat died this morning."

Perkins' written reply was bitter: "Mr. Perkins is sorry to hear of Mr. Brown's trouble, but he had not heard that Mrs. Brown was ill."—Harper's Weekly.

Perfectly Plain.

With all the impartiality of the partisan, Prof. Price set forth the contentions of both political parties regarding the tariff.

At the close of his talk he was surrounded by the fair members of the Woman's Current Events club.

"O Prof. Price," cooed the fairest, "thank you so much for your perfectly lovely talk! I understand all about the tariff now. It's just like a lover's complications—the free-traders are the other girl!"—Sunday Magazine.

THE DOCTOR'S GIFT.

Food Worth Its Weight in Gold.

We usually expect the doctor to put us on some kind of panacea and give us bitter medicines.

A Penn. doctor brought a patient something entirely different and the results are truly interesting.

"Two years ago," writes this patient, "I was a frequent victim of acute indigestion and biliousness, being allowed to eat very few things. One day our family doctor brought me a small package, saying he had found something for me to eat, at last."

"He said it was a food called Grape-Nuts, and even as its golden color might suggest, it was worth its weight in gold. I was sick and tired, trying one thing after another to no avail, but at last consented to try this new food."

"Well! It surpassed my doctor's fondest anticipation and every day since then I have blessed the good doctor and the inventor of Grape-Nuts."

"I noticed improvement at once and in a month's time my former ailments of indigestion had disappeared. In two months I felt like a new man. My brain was much clearer and keener, my body took on the vitality of youth, and this condition has continued."

Illinois State News

Recent Happenings of Interest in the Various Cities and Towns.

TO MOVE AGAINST ANARCHISTS.

State's Attorney and Police Will Be Active in Chicago.

Chicago.—Thorough investigation of the anarchistic propaganda in Chicago, first by the state's attorney and the police, acting together, and later, if necessary, by the grand jury, was decided upon by a conference of city and county officials held in Mayor Busse's office.

The conference also reached the agreement that the present city ordinances and state laws gave the state and city sufficient power to deal with the conditions which led up to the attempt to take the life of Chief of Police Shippy. Rigid enforcement of these laws as interpreted by Judge Gary and others instead of the passage of new legislation was the course agreed upon.

FLED TO ESCAPE HIDING.

Boy Passes Forty-Eight Hours in Bitter Cold, and May Die.

Bloomington.—Stung by his mother's reproaches because he had lost his mittens, Fred Keefe, the 12-year-old son of a farmer, near Chillicothe, fled from the house while the recent blizzard was at its height and crept for shelter into a neighboring hay stack. The lad remained there 48 hours, searching parties led by the frantic parents being unable to find him. Believing himself to be dying, the lad then crawled homeward, and fell fainting inside the door. He was so badly frozen that he hardly can survive.

Mine Strike Settled.

Duquoin.—The strike at the Equitable and Queen City mines, which has been on for the last three weeks, affecting 400 men, has been settled and the mines resumed operations. The difference arose over the grade of powder furnished the miners, the latter contending that they could not obtain satisfactory results. The question was submitted to a committee representing the Illinois Coal Operators' association and the union mine workers, and was settled satisfactorily to both sides. During the suspension the miners were given weekly strike benefits from the local union.

Champaign for Cannon.

Champaign.—Speaker Joseph O. Cannon of the national house of representatives is the choice of the Champaign county Republicans for president, official action favoring his candidacy and instructing for him being taken by the county central committee at a meeting in this city. The resolutions commend President Roosevelt, Senators Cullom and Hopkins, and Congressman McKinley, but make no reference to the state administration.

Chicago's Tax Levy for 1908.

Chicago.—The city's tax levy for 1908 was fixed at $32,738,680 by the city council. Last year the total was $29,869,147, but that was scaled down by about $2,500,000 before the tax rate was put on the books, and it is expected that the amount asked for this year will be treated in the same manner, and the figure suggested by Comptroller Wilson probably will not be the one actually collected.

Celebrates Golden Wedding, Dies.

Bloomington.—The happiness which attended the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson was shattered when death suddenly claimed the aged wife. She enjoyed the day with friends in her home in Randolph township and was showered with congratulations of her apparent good health, and all were shocked when news of her death came.

Gen. Herman Lieb Died.

Chicago.—Gen. Herman Lieb, a veteran of the civil war and for 20 years an official of the post office department, died at Augustana hospital. He was 82 years old. The immediate cause of his death was peritonitis. A fall while searching the street for a pet dog preceded his illness, and an inquest was held to determine whether the accident was responsible for the death.

Food Chokes Insane Man.

Jacksonville.—Felix G. Penn, 72 years old, a patient at the Central Hospital for the insane, while eating his dinner was strangled to death by food. He was brought to the hospital from Mowqua. A coroner's inquest affixed no blame to the managers of the institution.

announcement came as a surprise, even to his most intimate friends. Mr. Sherman has a sister living in Colorado Springs, Col., who will be hostess of the couple for two weeks. A trip to El Paso and California probably will follow. They will return on May 1 and reside at Springfield.

Designs Are Accepted.

Lincoln.—The trustees of the I. O. O. F. home have accepted the plans of the local architects, Deal & Glazier, for the new domestic science building. The new structure is to cost about $15,000 and will be two stories and of brick, erected near the main building and west of the present main structure. The building is to have a big dining-room, the domestic science quarters and a number of other rooms as well.

Good Prospects for Coal Mine.

Greenview.—The Greenview coal mine is now getting out about 125 tons of coal a day and is taking on new men every week. It is thought that if the strike ceases on that the Greenview mine will be permitted to work, as all of the miners are stockholders in the company. If this is allowed, the mine will be rapidly put upon a sound financial basis.

Young Man Held for Robbery.

Pittsfield.—Paul Frick, a well-connected young man of this city, was taken into custody by federal authorities, charged with having robbed a post office near San Antonio, Tex. He was indicted by the grand jury here last November on a charge of forging checks on several business men of this city, but has been on bond.

GOOD CREAM SOUPS

SOME LATE AND CAREFULLY TESTED RECIPES.

Materials for Simple But Delicious Soup—Cream of Celery One of the Best Known of Preparations.

The following recipes for cream soups have been carefully tested: A simple but delicious clam soup calls for a quart of soft shelled clams, or 50; a quart and a half of milk, a third of a cupful of butter, three tablespoonfuls of flour, slice of onion, a little nutmeg, salt and pepper. Drain the liquor from the clams, strain it and set it aside. Wash the clams by emptying them into a colander and placing it under the faucet for a moment. Put the milk and the slice of onion in a double boiler and set it on the stove. Cream the butter and rub the flour into it with a spoon. As soon as the milk boils remove the onion. Add a little of the milk gradually to the creamed butter and flour, stirring it to form a smooth paste. Beat this mixture into the boiling milk. Season with salt, pepper and a grating of nutmeg. Cook for five minutes. Then add the clam liquor and clams. Cook for five minutes longer.

A cream of clam soup, though more expensive, is even more delicious. The same ingredients are used with the addition of a pint of cream. The clams are washed and placed in a saucepan to simmer for a few minutes. The liquor is then drained off and the clams are pounded in a mortar and rubbed through a coarse sieve. Proceed as directed in the foregoing recipe, adding the cream when the pounded clams and their liquor are added. Serve very hot with croutons.

To prepare a cream of celery soup—wash a good sized head of celery and break the stalks into inch length pieces. Boil in as little water as possible until pulpy. In the meantime put over the stove in a double boiler a pint of milk, a large slice of onion and a piece of mace. Mash the celery in the water in which it was cooked, and when the milk boils add to it the mashed celery. Cream together a tablespoonful of butter and one of flour, then add to the soup. Season with salt and pepper and cook for five minutes. Strain and serve. A cupful of cream added the last moment will make it richer.

A cream of mixed vegetables calls for two heaping teaspoonfuls of diced onion, the same amount each of diced carrot and celery and half that amount of turnip. Put three tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and when melted add the diced vegetables. Let them cook for 15 minutes, taking care that they do not brown. In the meantime put a quart and a pint of milk over the stove in a double boiler, with a bay leaf, a small blade of mace and a spray of parsley. When the vegetables are tender add three tablespoonfuls of flour and stir the mixture gradually into the boiling milk. Season with salt and pepper; then cook for half an hour. Beat up the yolks of two eggs and add to them a cupful of cream. Stir the mixture into the soup and let it cook for a minute, beating constantly to prevent curdling. This soup may be strained or not, as preferred. It is delicious with the diced vegetables left in. Serve with croutons.

Tonic for Tired Housekeepers.

Place six fresh eggs in an earthen bowl without breaking the shells and pour over them the juice of six large or seven small lemons. Let it stand 48 hours. At the end of the first 24 hours turn the eggs over, and at the end of 48 hours the shells should be entirely gone, dissolved in the lemon juice. Remove any skin that remains. Into the egg mixture stir one-half pound best California honey, one gill of cream, one gill of rum, adding the cream to the honey before stirring it into the eggs. Beat all together 20 minutes with an egg beater, then bottle. Dose, wineglassful every morning before breakfast and at night if necessary. This is particularly good for tired worn-out women.

Cake from Bread Sponge.

Use two cups brown sugar, butter size of an egg, two eggs, one teaspoon each of cloves, cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger and soda; over this pour one cup boiling water; when cool add one cup bread sponge, one cup or more of raisins, and flour enough to make a soft cake dough. Bake immediately as you would any cake.

Economical Soup.

Get a ten-cent soup bone. Put on with three quarts of water. Add vegetables of all kinds, salt and pepper to taste. Cook for three hours. This will make enough soup for two dinners. Reheat second day. Third day, make soup from bone, same quantity as first. Soup made the second time is much hotter than first.

Hot Water for Dishes.

Hot water for washing dishes may be easily and cheaply procured by placing two pans of cold water in the boiler when the oven is being used. The water will become as hot as is needed and for no extra gas. When using the boiler put the pans into the oven to heat.

Claret Sauce for Sultana Roll.

Roll one cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of water seven or eight minutes. Let it cool and add a third of a cupful of claret.

Our Springfield Letter

Special Correspondent Writes of Things of Interest at the State Capital.

Springfield.—The strength of the state banks in Illinois and the conservatism with which these institutions have operated during the recent financial flurry is emphasized in a recapitulation of the aggregate resources and liabilities of all the banks doing business under state charters, issued by State Auditor McCullough. The auditor's statement shows the condition of all the state banks in Illinois on February 15, last, and a comparison is made with the condition of the same banks on November 19, last, when the last preceding statement was submitted to the auditor. While the total deposits of the Illinois banks show a decrease of $14,916,104.59 in the period of depression, the total capital, surplus and undivided profits of the banks show a decrease of only $679,511.60. The total cash and due from other banks shows an increase of $18,727,514.36. The statement of February 15 shows the per cent. of reserve to deposits is 34.29, a condition of strength probably unprecedented in the history of Illinois banking. The per cent. of decrease of deposits is 3.53. One of the striking changes in banking policies adopted when the flurry came was the curtailment of loans, the item of loans and discounts showing a decrease of $32,199,775.08 on February 15, when it aggregated $293,107,896.27. The action of the eastern depositaries in declining to surrender western banks' deposits is apparent in the items of cash due from other banks. From national banks was due $51,584,877.39, an increase of $14,958,666.31, and due from state banks and bankers, $24,022,765.87, an increase of $5,507,871.80.

Cavalry to Make Tour in July.

The Illinois cavalry regiment of the National guard will abandon the customary encampment at Camp Lincoln in Springfield this year, and instead will pass ten days in an overland tour of northern Illinois. The troops of Bloomington, Galesburg, Springfield, Peoria and other cities will mobilize by rail in Chicago on July 20 and in company with the troops of the regiment stationed in Chicago will leave on that day on an overland trip, striking west to the Des Moines river, thence around western and northern Illinois, reaching Chicago about July 30. The regiment will be deployed by squadrons and troops and a series of army maneuvers carried on en route. It is believed that this overland trip will give the cavalrymen greater practical instruction than could possibly be acquired at Camp Lincoln.

To Meet Again at Springfield.

Illinois county treasurers who met in convention here last Springfield so well they decided to hold two more gatherings in this city in the coming year. The first will be September 15, of the present year, and will be a special meeting called for the purpose of discussing matters pertaining to the work. The regular annual convention will be the third Tuesday in February, 1909. Officers for the ensuing year were elected at the closing session as follows: President, B. A. McCoy, Adams county; vice-presidents, Fred E. Ames, Lake; Walter B. Rogers, Morgan; Henry R. Arnold, La Salle; secretary, James A. Hall, Sangamon; assistant secretary, William H. Bove, Sangamon; treasurer, H. M. Sanders, Madison.

Shurtliff Withdraws from Race.

Speaker Edward D. Shurtliff has retired from the gubernatorial race. Mr. Shurtliff says that he takes this step in the interests of the Republican party and the success of the ticket in Illinois this fall. He declares that in his opinion it would be impossible to elect the Republican ticket unless the candidate for the nomination for governor had the support in the primary of a majority of the Republican voters. With Gov. Deneen and former Gov. Yates engaged in the campaign battle already, he says, he will not proceed further with his contention.

New Illinois Road Licensed.

The secretary of state licensed the Chicago, Milwaukee & Gary Railway company. The capital stock is $10,000,000. It proposes to construct a railway from a point in Winnebago county, on the boundary line between Illinois and Wisconsin, thence southeasterly in Illinois through the counties of Winnebago, Ogle, DeKalb, Kane, Kendall, Will and Kankakee to some point on the Indiana line, in Kankakee county.

Horses Bring Good Prices.

Many Sangamon county buyers attended a sale of horses which was held in Bloomington. Among the purchases, made by residents in central Illinois are: P. J. Telfahrs, Williams-ville, "Keota" Florence, Percheron mare, $200; Joseph Angus, Spaulding, "Royal Diamond," Shire stallion, $380; "Sir Knight," Percheron stallion; "Kinsall G.," Shire stallion, $165; Robert Thompson, Taylorville, iron gray two-year-old stallion, $750; black stallion, $925; pure bred Percheron stallion, $1,270.

Pure Water for Springfield.

The diversion of Spring creek and the construction of a new dam on the rock bottom at a point below the present waterworks dam is recommended by a committee of the Sangamon County Medical society as the one practical solution of the problem for securing a quantity of water sufficient for the present and future needs of the city of Springfield. A committee consisting of Drs. G. N. Kreider, E. E. Hagler and H. H. Tuttle submitted its report to the president and members of the Sangamon County Medical society. This organization, in turn, presented the report to the chamber of commerce of Springfield, and at a meeting of the latter organization the report was referred to the civic committee for consideration. To improve the quality of water and to insure its purity the committee recommends that septic tanks be placed at the mouth of the sewers in southeast Springfield, so that the sewage will not be poured into Sugar creek. It is also proposed that the towns of Riverton, Taylorville and Decatur be appealed to and an effort made to induce these municipalities to take similar precautionary steps. In addition, it is declared to be desirable to have the water of the town branch of Springfield pass through a septic tank before it enters Spring creek.

Scheme Promises Big Returns.

The promoters of the scheme to reclaim thousands of acres of land along the course of the Sangamon river by straightening the stream have figured that the improvement will cost but ten dollars per acre for the land to be reclaimed, and are confident that they will be able to file their petition in the Sangamon county court some time this month. The work of securing signatures to the petition which is to be presented has been greatly hampered by the condition of the roads, but it is thought the work will be completed some time next week. The greater portion of the land to be reclaimed is valued at $50 per acre, while it will advance to double that price if the contemplated improvements are made. It is estimated that an entirely new ditch could be constructed without attempting to follow the course of the river at a cost not to exceed ten dollars per acre. Beside reclaiming the land, the change would make the river much better in every respect, keeping the water less stagnant and furnishing a much better place for pleasure boats.

Smulski Turns Over Interest.

Another payment of interest on public funds into the state treasury was made by State Treasurer John F. Smulski. The amount of the payment was $21,756.61, being the interest on the public funds from October 1, last, to December 31, last. This makes an aggregate of $91,765.55 which has been turned over to the state by Treasurer Smulski, who is the first person ever in the office who has turned over to the state one cent of the interest received on deposits of state moneys in depositaries. The action is wholly voluntary on the part of Mr. Smulski, as the recently enacted law creating a commission to loan the state funds for the benefit of the state does not become operative until July 1, next. It is estimated that in two years of his office, Mr. Smulski will turn over almost $200,000 to the state in interest on moneys in his custody.

All Doors Must Open Outward.

As the result of the disaster at Collinwood, O., Dr. James A. Egan, secretary of the state board of health, addressed an open letter to mayors of cities, presidents of boards of village trustees, township supervisors and boards of county commissioners of Illinois, urging the necessity of making sure that doors open outward and that noncombustible fire escapes for school buildings be installed. The state board of health, under the powers conferred upon it by statute, authorizes the officers named to close all school buildings not so provided with safe exits, both private and public, until such provisions for the protection of the lives of children are made.

Chicago Bank Is Organized.

Articles of incorporation were issued by the state auditor for the "Slovakian Polish Building and Loan association" at Chicago, Ill., to St. Broniarczyk, George Surma, Frank Palowski, Antoni Radecki, George Budz, Jan Bolla and Andrej Tomas. The capital stock is fixed at $500,000.

Gov. Deneen Indorsed.

One of the strongest indorsements yet given Gov. Deneen was contained in a resolution adopted by the Republican central committee of Christian county which met at Taylorville. In addition to praising the governor's administration, the committee indorsed President Roosevelt and the records of United States Senators Cullom and Hopkins. The delegates were instructed to vote for Joseph G. Cannon for president, at the congressional convention.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Catarrh cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 to 30 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It cures in a few days and is guaranteed to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. that Congress has no

of Mr. Atkinson's argument is that every

But why does not

On Monday forenoon at about 10:30 o'clock considerable excitement was caused by the ringing of the fire bell and the report that the school house was on fire. The fire fortunately proved to be only a small one and was extinguished in a few moments but not before all the children had left the building in good order. The fire was caused by the overheating of the furnace pipe which set fire to the casing of the register in Prof. Allen's room.

DOLL THAT CHILDREN LIKE.

Home-Made Article Is Frequently the Most Popular.

It often happens that a little inexpensive or home-made toy will please a child much more than something that we may buy in a shop and pay a good price for, and this doll from which this sketch was made ranked far above many of the other and more valuable possessions of its juvenile owner. It can be easily made out of any old piece of material that we may happen to have by us. It is cut out in two pieces, one to form the back and one the front, and stitched together at the edges and well stiffened with cotton wool. Two blue beads form the eyes and the lines of the face are worked on the cloth in colored silks. The hair consists of a small piece of soft fur sewn on at the back of the head, and four beads sewn on down the front suggested buttons. The apron is made separately and lies round the waist. The side view shows the thickness the doll should be when completed, and about seven inches in height is a good size in which it may be made, and, of course, it may be dressed in any style liked.

HATS FOR THE CHILDREN.

Many Models from Which Selections May Be Made.

A combination of two or three shades in the matter of children's hats is an important feature of the moment. A very popular alliance is that of "framboise" and fawn, in the form of two large satin choux loosely put together, which are placed exactly in front of the mushroom-shaped hat.

Another trimming consists of thick "cable cords" fashioned of twists of wide satin ribbon in three different tones, which are passed around the crown of the hats and terminate in a large Turk's head knot, catching an ostrich or marabout plume.

For the tiny nursery people nothing is prettier than a soft, white, hairy felt, finished with a hem of white satin and a ruche of the same, the center of which is punctuated at intervals with market bunches of pink-tipped field daisies.

For the Hostess.

It is in small details that a hostess makes her mark and it is hardly possible to overdo the provision of extra comforts.

When the guest is an elderly person or somewhat of an invalid a spirit lamp and small saucepan will probably prove invaluable during the night. A tin of biscuits represents also kindly forethought, while the housemaid should always be instructed to inquire of each guest if any other small matters are required, a hot-water bottle at night and extra blankets making all the difference.

A card giving the name of the postal deliveries and departures should always be placed in a photograph frame on the writing table, or hung on a prominent spot on the wall, the times of meals being likewise included. A railroad time table should also be in evidence.

Lace Epaulette Draperies.

Very pretty and graceful are the lace draperies of epaulette shape which replace the sleeve in its ordinary form for ball and dinner dresses. The lace employed for the purpose is from six to eight inches broad. Gathered closely over the shoulders, it falls in full folds over the top of the arm.

The widely opened armhole has become a generally observed fashion, but is more suited for day than evening wear, and is often a rather displeasing feature with a low bodice. The lace drapery just described replaces it advantageously, and still preserves the broad appearance across the shoulders, which has been one of the characteristics of this winter's fashions. For young girls the same sort of drapery is made of Greek or point d'esprit net, with a narrow, self-colored crimped fringe as edging.

The Tea Apron.

I think the tea apron has come to stay. The clever woman has learned that no article of apparel imparts such a dainty, homely, domestic and altogether lovable air to the wearer as the little tea apron, and the clever hostess at afternoon teas, informal veranda affairs and the "wells rare" repast in the late evening, is rarely seen without one of these fascinating little aprons. The wild rose tea apron can be embroidered in shadow work or with the solid or half-solid embroidery, done in wild rose shades of embroidery cotton or silk. The forget-me-not apron is especially dainty, and the design is very easy to work. The natural shades of forget-me-nots, blue and green, should be used for the design.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

BROOK FARM

See that the disc harrow is sharp and ready for use.

Save the waste on the farm and apply it to lifting the mortgage.

As a rule too little light is admitted to the cow stable. Put in some more windows.

Do not let the roots of the young nursery stock dry out. Heel in until ready to set out.

The low prices of some animals prevailing now offer a favorable opportunity of stocking up.

High-priced corn and low-priced hogs is a combination which has caused the farmers some concern.

Dragging the roads when they are the muddest makes them the smoothest and easiest when they are dry.

The fat troughs and drinking fountains should be kept clean and sweet. Fouled ones may result in sick birds.

It is a good idea to keep track of the horse teeth. Sometimes a little bit of attention will save lots of future trouble.

The farmer who watches the little things is a farmer who does the big things the way of crops and stock raising.

If you are breeding up, be sure that indifference and neglect is resulting in a lowering of the grade of your livestock.

To be sure a man can make a fool of a colt, but judicious handling, but ordinary handling never hurt a colt and never.

Chickens will eat anything, but whatever the food should be good and wholesome. If rotten stuff should never be fed.

More men fall in poultry business through over-zeal and attempting too much the beginning than from any other cause.

When a horse's teeth are defective and no longer have grinding power which is necessary for the proper mastication of its food is well to feed ground oats.

Some colts, of course, more easily spoiled than others. If he early gives indication of not being ordinary "horse" sense let them follow him at his first start.

A place for everything and everything in its place is a motto for the farmer. How many times and even hours it would save sometimes when you are in need of a particular tool.

Some agricultural experts discovered that a top dress of manure will prevent evaporation of moisture from the soil to the extent of about a ten of water to one acre. Think of the value of such a thing to the crop during the growing season.

Here is one man's method of crow extinction which he claims is a success. In his 40-acre field dug a pit and then covered it over with its presence could not be detected. After entering this pit, he lures the call of the crow until it alights the birds. When within shooting distance he uses his gun. When he kills a number he fastens them about the blind in a natural position and the presence adds to the attractive wares of the deception. He has already killed more than a thousand of the birds, bringing him in a revenue of about $100, and expects to kill as many more during the remainder of the winter.

"What man when building a house, sits still and counts the cost, sits there?" And what farmer is there who having a sowing and growing and harvesting season ahead of him, sits still and counts the cost of the work thereof? Oh, there are lots of them. The season is upon them before they have taken any thought as to what they are going to plant, where they are going to plant it, and how they are going to prepare and cultivate the ground, and the result is that it is a sort of blind farming which begins nowhere and ends dangerously near bankruptcy corner or next door to the poor house. What folly. The wise farmer sits still himself and considers carefully the work of the coming season, he recollects the mistakes of the past, and resolves that he will do better next time. This is the reason he finds that farming pays. Try the plan.

Surely the bee is entitled to his title of busy if the figures of an industrious mathematician are correct. He says that to make one pound of clover honey, bees must deprive 52,000 clover blossoms of their nectar, and to do this requires 2,750,000 visits to the blossoms by the bees. In other words, one bee, to collect enough nectar to make one pound of honey, must go from hive to flower and back 2,750,000 times. Then when you think how far these bees sometimes fly in search of these clover fields, often more than one or two miles from the hive, you will begin to get a small idea of the number of miles one of the industrious little creatures must travel in order that you may have the pound of honey that gives them so much trouble.

National Corn Growers' association working during the coming season the encouraging of the interest of corn by breeding, disseminating information regarding the use of soil culture and farm machinery for corn, encouraging the holding of a national corn exposition to stimulate interest in corn in undeveloped territory, methods and standards of growing so far as possible, securing adoption of uniform classification of corn exhibits and rules governing exhibits, encouraging the development and use of corn products and opening up home and foreign markets for corn and corn products as food for man and beast.

Experimental farms of one acre each in every section of four of the western agricultural states is the plan which has been proposed by Congressman Scott of Kansas, chairman of the house committee on agriculture. His proposition involves the establishment of 100 experimental farms of one acre each in every county in four western agricultural states to give the farmers a practical demonstration of the best methods of growing different kinds of crops. It is proposed that the lands for this purpose be furnished by the farmers themselves and that they do the work of cultivation under the direction of the experts of the department of agriculture. No additional appropriation from congress will be required to test Mr. Scott's plan. It is explained, as the agricultural department now has the requisite number of experts to carry out the plan.

TICKET SYSTEM IN SPAIN.

Mileage Books Must Have Photograph of the Owner.

The average first-class fare in Spain is about four cents a mile (just double the first-class of some American lines, and with only 60 pounds free baggage), but with these mileage books, which are good on all the railroads of Spain, the fare works out at 2.66 cents a mile for 1,210 miles down to 1.86 and 1.7 cents a mile for 5,000 and 7,500 miles.

In order to secure these mileage tickets application must be made at any of the important railway stations of Spain at least 48 hours before the tickets are required. Simple blank forms to be filled up by the applicant are furnished at any of the railway offices, and the application must invariably be accompanied by a 4 1/2 by 3 1/2 inch unmounted photograph of the applicant. This is glued on the inner cover of the mileage book. If desired several persons may use the same book, but the book must then contain a photograph of each of these persons. There is no advantage in having several names on the same book, except that if persons are traveling regularly together the trouble of making out a separate application and the additional fee for preparing a separate book for each person is avoided by making a collective demand.

Second-class mileage books cost from 1.95 cents down to 1.27 cents per mile, while third-class mileage books are issued at one-third less than those for second-class. In Spain it is almost impossible, however, to travel third class. As a matter of fact even second-class is not very satisfactory, for the reason that the express trains as a rule are limited to first-class. However, for persons who do not object to crowds and slow traveling and long waits at railway stations second-class is not impossible. It is said that tourist agents in central Europe either know very little about these economical Spanish kilometre tickets or else for reasons of their own do not advise intending tourists to Spain as to their existence. Perhaps this is due to the fact that the Spanish railways allow the agents commissions on ticket sales.

French Way Train Got on Wrong Track and Had to Make Quick Time.

Through the fault of a signalman a way train which left Paris Monday night for Amiens got on the wrong track and was chased by an express train for over an hour at the imminent risk of a collision, says the New York Times.

The mistake took place where the northern line branches after leaving the bridge at Creil. There, through the momentary absentmindedness of a signalman, the way train was sent out on the track going to Compiègne instead of the one going to Amiens.

Knowing that he was followed at a short distance by the fast express which leaves the Gare du Nord at 8:20 o'clock, the engineer immediately sent his train ahead at full speed for the station of Pont-Saint-Maxence, where there is a siding. The track was clear for the express, so there was no danger ahead.

The passengers, many of them commuters used to a leisurely pace and familiar with every inch of the road, soon discovered that something was wrong, and the report spread that the engineer had gone mad. This seemed verified when the train passed station after station at dizzy speed. Conductor and brakemen were as terrified as the passengers. When Pont-Saint-Maxence was reached the train came to a sudden halt and was then run safely on the siding.

The express dashed by—on time and without mishap. The way train with its agitated commuters then returned in peace to Creil, where it was switched to the line it should have taken two hours before.

WHAT WINTER WHEAT IS DOING FOR SOUTHERN ALBERTA.

Splendid Crops on the Former Ranching Plains of Canadian West.

That portion of the country in Western Canada formerly recognized as ranching country has developed into one of the best winter wheat districts in the continent. Yields are quoted running from 30 to 60 bushels to the acre, and giving a return to the farmer of from $25 to $50 per acre. These lands are now selling at from $12 to $20 per acre, and pay well at that figure. H. Howes of Magrath, Alberta, Western Canada, had 50 acres of land in wheat, which averaged 45 bushels to the acre; his yield of oats was 35 bushels. The value to him per acre of wheat was $36.00. J. F. Haycock of the same place, says: "I had 66 acres of wheat, 35 acres of oats and four acres of barley. My average yield of oats to the acre was 80 bushels; wheat—winter—60 bushels and red rye, 33 bushels, and barley, 50 bushels. The value to me per acre was, wheat, $28.00; oats, $32.00, and barley, $24.00." J. F. Bradshaw of Magrath, had 1,030 acres of wheat in crop that averaged 39 1/2 bushels to the acre, his oats, 32 bushels; barley, 53 bushels. He threshed 31,000 bushels of wheat from 640 acres. He also had 260 tons of sugar beets from 25 acres worth $5.62 1/2 per ton. W. S. Shorod, of Lethbridge, says: "I came to Lethbridge from Souris, North Dakota, in April, 1907, having purchased 900 acres of land in this district last fall. I had 128 acres of Alberta Red winter wheat which was put in on breaking in the fall of 1906, which yielded 41 1/2 bushels to the acre, for which I received 87 1/2 cents per bushel, which paid me $36.30 per acre. I had 190 acres 'stubbled in' that is disced in on the stubble, which yielded 22 bushels to the acre at 87 1/2 cents per bushel, which paid me $19.26 to the acre. I also had 350 acres of strictly volunteer crop, which it was intended to prepare in the summer; but when it was seen that it was a good looking crop, it was allowed to go. From this we threshed 15 bushels to the acre, which paid us at the rate of 87 1/2 cents per bushel or $13.12 per acre. Our total crop yielded us 14,742 bushels of first-class wheat. Taking it as a whole, I consider that I had a first-class crop all through; and, taking into consideration the fact of part of the crop having been 'stubbled in,' and part strictly volunteer (which was never touched at all until the blunder was put into it), I consider I had a heavy crop. I might say that I was in North Dakota five years, and I never grew as heavy a crop during that time. This is the 25th day of November, and my teams are still ploughing, and from the appearance of the weather, will be for some time yet." R. W. Bradshaw of Magrath, says: "I had this year 400 acres in crop, viz.: 200 acres of wheat and 200 acres in oats. My average yield of oats to the acre was 60 bushels, and wheat, 22 1/2 bushels. The value to me per acre for wheat was $19.00, and oats, $17.00. The highest price obtained by me this year or offered me for my grain was for wheat 82 cents per bushel, and $1.06 per hundred for oats. I also had 100 tons of hay worth $12.00 per ton, and will say my wheat was all volunteer this year. Lots of wheat is averaging from 50 to 60 bushels per acre on summer fallow, and on new breaking, when the breaking was done early in the spring." Writing from Spring Coulee, Alberta, W. L. Thompson says: "I had this year 3,000 acres in crop, viz.: 2,000 acres of wheat and 1,000 acres of oats. My average yield of oats to the acre was 30 bushels and of wheat 35 bushels. The value to me per acre for wheat was $27.00 and for oats $15.00."

(Information regarding the districts mentioned, best way to reach them, low rates, certificates, etc., can be secured from any agent of the Canadian government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere.—Ed.)

Railroad Building in 1907.

During 1907 5,220 miles of railway have been built in the United States, according to the estimates of the Railroad Gazette.

This was exclusive of second, third and fourth tracks, sidings and electric lines. The total is eight per cent. less than for 1906, though the year began with conditions promising a larger construction than over before. With these expectations a scarcity of labor and supplies, adverse state legislation and difficulty in borrowing money, interfered. The amount spent on new equipment exceeded that of 1903 by 26 per cent, approximating $477,000,000.

Remember that when the stomach nerves fail or weaken, Dyspepsia or Indigestion must always follow. But, strengthen these same weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and then see how quickly health will return again. Weak Heart and Kidney nerves can also be strengthened with the Restorative, where Heart palpitation, or Kidney weakness is found. Don't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Go to the cause of these ailments. Strengthen these weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and get well. A simple, single test will surely tell. Sold by J. H. Swan.
